After the great success of Slashed (Best Australian Short Film at the Melbourne Queer Film Festival 2011) Rebecca Thomson and Rogan Brown have again joined forces with Claire D'Este to take you behind the scenes of the slimy world of jelly-mania.

Rebecca and Rogan's film-making skills are well recognised. Their films Cupcake: A Zombie Lesbian Musical, Apple Head and Slashed have now been seen at over 30 film festivals world-wide including screenings in USA, Canada, Spain, France, Belgium, Serbia and, of course, Australia. They have also been invited to submit their films to festivals in Russia, The Netherlands, Finland, Italy and Israel!

Riding high on the back of mounting excitement with jelly wrestling in Tasmania, Claire turns her insightful eye to the exploits of the girls behind the bar of a typical Tasmanian pub. Combine her back-stabbing, pants-ripping script with the skills of highly experienced film practitioners, add more than a touch of intrigue, a bar packed with wrestling fans and a pool full of jelly and you have a prize-winning combination:

THE STORY

THE JELLY WRESTLER tells the story of washed-up barmaid Eileen, crowned "Queen of the Gelatine" in the 80s at the peak of her career, but who has been on a slippery gelatinous slope downhill ever since.

When Amy, a young barmaid at the pub where she works decides to organise a jelly wrestling championship, Eileen sees an opportunity to relive her glory days, and helps train Amy in the skills of the jelly pool.

But on the day of the competition, through a twist of fate, Eileen must now grapple with her younger more supple opponents, and put down for the count her own jelly wrestling demons - a task that may well be beyond her.
